Title: Beathazard

Artist: Downrocks

Style: Electro Funk

Feats: Dark Vektor, Split DJ.

Now comes this new record with 5 tracks and a bonus for DJs. Self classified as electro funk, its clear that is heavily influenced by those 80's monsters like Paul Hardcastle, Pretty Tony, World Class Wrecking Crew or Egyptian Lover. Side A begins with a song (a Split Hazard) half-made with his old partner Split DJ (Electronautas) that brings great scratches to a phat beat, dark melodies and "pack jam" style vocoders. All classic elements for pure electro funk. After this there is 2 songs (specie 8472, Genetic H) with faster beats and more modern feeling clearly influenced by science fiction and fantasy... claiming with this music that Electro is the Science fiction of the music. Side B starts with the song that names the EP, Beathazard, honouring the label that releases this work. Last song is one of the best productions, Entropia. Retro beats plenty of basses and melodies in a pure old school format. There is a complete rap history made in Spanish language. This song was made in collaboration with Dark Vektor (Dona-li Records). And last track, the sixth is a 2 minutes hardcore electro beat plus some a capella vocoders that can come handy for scratchers and live re-mixers. In general this record really sounds electro funk and powerful in almost everything.
