Some text on the record cover states:

"According to the molecular medicine, the Introns allow the genes to be modular, a fact that is considered of importance for the genetic evolution.

Though I am coexisting with the Electro since I discover the music, Downrocks is a project that was born in 2006.

5 years later, to continue advancing, I have had the need to compile on a disc a representation of the songs done during that time.

They will stay as a fingerprint in my genetic code, enough to influence future compositions."

Beathazard Recordings releases the first album of Kapi's alter ego, Downrocks, straight from Barcelona, deep into the Electro Funk.

It compiles 15 songs where there are some unpublished tracks, and everything else has been, updated, upgraded and re-edited.

It includes several versions called "Stage reconstruction", produced for the live gigs and concerts, with different machinery and extended structures, which allow us to glimpse what is the level of Downrocks's live sound.

Intron includes in addition 3 remixes exclusively made for this record, from friends-producers that fly near to this particular Electro sound: Dark Vektor (Barcelona), Invisible Rockers Crew (Greece) and Dynamik Bass System (Germany).
